

COX HURLS HOT SHOTS AT HAYS AND HARDING

State Fair Crowd Hears Democrat Demand Direct Answers From Opponent.

SAYS HAYS IS "PERJURER"

Truthfulness of Republican Testimony Before Probers Is Challenged.

By United Press Leased Wire
Milwaukee, Wis.—Governor James M. Cox, democratic presidential candidate, in addresses here today, laid down his Wisconsin stump barrage against the republicans by firing several direct questions at Senator Warren G. Harding and Senator H. H. Hays, chairman of the republican national committee.

Governor Cox and his party arrived here shortly after 11 o'clock and were met by a large delegation of prominent Wisconsin men and women. Drill teams of the Milwaukee Elks and Eagles headed a monster parade that escorted the visitor to his hotel from the Northwestern station.

Demanding "yes or no answer" from both Harding and Hays, Cox asked Harding to state whether the insertion of "teeth" in the Hague tribunal, as he proposed, means that the United States would be bound to exert physical or moral force, or both, as a member of the "revived association of nations."

Cannot Escape Answer
His second question to Harding was: "Are you opposed to our assuming any moral obligation in our international relations?"

Cox warned Harding that although he "escaped 1,161 quorum and roll calls in the senate," there can be no evasive answers to these questions.

Charging that testimony before the senate campaign expenditures committee at Chicago makes Hays a "perjurer," or Fred W. Upham, republican treasurer, "a falsifier." Cox challenged Hays to deny reports in "the official republican bulletin" that quotes were being cast in Chicago, Maine, Tennessee, Indiana and Colorado.

The governor also quoted Upham as saying that Hays was responsible for the financial campaign.

"If Upham is a falsifier," he then said, "it is your duty to discharge him as treasurer. If you do not do so, then the American people can draw their own conclusion."

"Does the putting of 'teeth' into the Hague tribunal mean the assuming of an obligation to exert moral or physical force, or both? In one part of your speech you say that this nation will not be made to appear as a 'welter' because no obligation will be assumed. How do you reconcile this with your program of putting 'teeth' into the Hague tribunal. This approaches the very crux of the whole argument and the American people are entitled to your mind. There can be no evasion. It is impossible in the senate for you to escape 1161 quorum and roll calls but you cannot do it either as candidate or as president. You must answer yes or no. Executive duties until legislative make either abatement or clear evasion impossible."

The governor challenged Hays to deny the correctness of the following quotations from the Official Bulletin of Aug. 16, which he said clearly show that large quotas are being collected:

"Stark county, Ohio, has completed quota."

"Cincinnati business men have underwritten quota."

Steuersville, Ohio, has nearly complete quota."

"Toledo actively soliciting to complete quota by Aug. 15."

"The state of Maine has over-subscribed its quota of $5,000."

"Chattanooga over-subscribed its quota this week."

"Large quotas assigned to twelfth Indiana congressional district."

"Northern counties in Colorado have practically raised their quotas."

Quota Reached

Theodore Roosevelt had no fears that American sovereignty would be lost by the entrance of the United States into a league of nations, Cox said.

Making a strong appeal to progress, he quoted the following from Roosevelt's speech accepting the Nobel peace prize in 1910 to show the weakness of the Hague tribunal which Senator Harding would revive:

"I ask other nations to do only what I should be glad to see my own nation do."

The supreme difficulty in connection with developing the peace work of the Hague arises from the lack of any executive power, of any police power to enforce the decrees of the court. Such power to command peace throughout the world would best be assured by some commission between those great nations which sincerely desire peace and have no thought themselves of committing aggression."

Seven speeches were on Cox's schedule today. Five were to be made in Milwaukee, before the Wisconsin state fair and other public gatherings. His special train stopped for five minutes for rear platform talks at Kenosha and Racine, on his way to Milwaukee from Chicago. Cox will spend the night here and return to Chicago tomorrow, before proceeding to St. Paul, Minn., where he will speak at the Minnesota state fair.

Miss Marietta McCarthy of Milwaukee is the guest of Miss Katherine Rodgins.

GREEN BAY MAN IS BADLY HURT IN AUTO WRECK

Sheldon Baetz Is in Hospital Following Accident Friday Evening.

IS PINNED BENEATH CAR
Driver Applies Brakes to Rapidly Moving Machine to Avoid Accident.

Sheldon Baetz of Green Bay was critically injured in an automobile collision at the corner of Rankin and North streets at 6:30 o'clock Friday evening when he was pinned beneath his heavy Chalmers car while on his way to visit his brother, Clarence Baetz, who is employed at the Valley Iron Works. He was taken to St. Elizabeth hospital, where he was unconscious Saturday morning. His skull and hip were injured and he was also injured internally.

The driver of the other automobile was John Schmitz, 220 Commercial street, who escaped injury. Baetz was driving south on Rankin street and Schmitz west on North street. In attempting to avoid the collision Baetz set his brakes which caused the car to face about and in doing so it came in contact with the curb and fell over on the driver.

The top was broken, windshield smashed, right rear wheel damaged and left running board and fenders bent. The front axle of Schmitz's machine was bent and also the right front fender. The city ambulance was called. Baetz's car was purchased less than two weeks ago.

GERMANS WANT TO SEE RUSSIAN KING

Monarchist Counter-Revolution in Russia Is Planned, Report Says.

(By Carl D. Groan)

By United Press Leased Wire
Berlin—Reports were circulated here today that plans for a monarchist counter-revolution in Russia, on a much greater scale than any attempted since establishment of the soviet government, were being formulated in Vienna.

The contemplated revolt, it was said, was being backed with huge sums, a portion of which was originated in German monarchist quarters.

Providing the Russian revolution should succeed according to the reports, a similar royalist movement would later be linked with that in Russia.

The Vienna correspondent of the Berlin Tageblatt revealed that many wealthy representatives of the old czarist regime were gathering in the Austrian capital, including Baron Rosenberg, former Minister of Justice Herchenstein and Generals Biskupski and Arsenyev.

Prominent German businessmen were said to be prepared to donate funds to support the German phase of the proposed double counter-revolution.

"The horse and buggy in the hands of young bloods who go courting is a rarity," he said.

"The only people who ride in buggies nowadays are grandpa and grandma and conservative folks," he said.

HORSE AND BUGGY NEAR OBLIVION

Automobiles Have Displaced Livery Stables, Blacksmiths and Courting.

Chicago—Progress has played havoc with the old fashioned livery stable, the horseshoe smith and courting.

The horse and buggy in which our forefathers used to ride to church and in which their children went out courting in the evening, is so obsolete now that it is only the rich who can afford to maintain one.

The automobile has driven the horse and buggy off the road.

According to manufacturers of buggies, they only make them to special order.

The big firms which made a specialty in turning them out quit making them two years ago. They are making automobiles now.

C. D. Wilkin, manager of the Chicago branch of the Studebaker corporation which was the leading buggy manufacturing plant in the world, said they quit making them several years ago.

"The automobile eliminated it," he said.

"It also resulted in livery stables going out of business rather than turning themselves into garages. You can no longer hear the tink tink of the axvil and there are only a few left."

"The only people who ride in buggies nowadays are grandpa and grandma and conservative folks," he said.

LOOK FOR BIGGEST VOTE ON TUESDAY

Addition of Thousands of Women Voters Will Make Returns Very Late.

The largest primary election vote in the history of the state is expected Tuesday when nominations for the November elections are to be made.

The addition of thousands of women voters will complicate the counting of ballots and make definite returns on the election very late. In many places it is believed the definite returns will not be available until Wednesday.

There has been considerable apprehension expressed by democrats that their party will not get on the ticket because of the fact that there are no contests in the lower ranks and consequently many democrats will vote in the republican primary. An effort is being made in Outagamie county to have democrats vote in their own primary so that their candidates will be on the general election ballot.

Despite the probability the election returns will be late, due to voting by women and to the fact that the polls in many places will close several hours later than in former years, the Post-Crescent is prepared to give as complete an election service as is possible under the circumstances.

Arrangements have been made to secure prompt reports from Outagamie county precincts and the office will be constantly in communication with election centers all over the state. Returns will be obtained at this office as long as conditions warrant.

Choice Pets What Is House Without a Snake and a Toad, Biology Professor Asks Kansas School Teachers.

By United Press Leased Wire
Wichita, Kan.—W. E. Ringle, professor of biology of the Kansas manual training school at Pittsburg, Kans., speaking at a teachers' institute here, told teachers that every home should have a snake and a toad in it.

To emphasize his talk, Prof. Ringle drew a four foot bull snake from an egg sack and took a fat toad from his pocket.

"The toad would keep the home free from bugs and the snake would kill the mice."

JAPS INVADE BEET FIELDS OF WEST

Government Is Warned of Purchase of Sugar Beet Fields in California.

By United Press Leased Wire
Washington—Warning against an "invasion" of Japanese as proprietors of the sugar beet growing industry in California and the southwest is contained in a report to Secretary of Labor Wilson by two agents appointed to make a survey of contract labor.

The report written by Hamilton and A. L. Faulkner, reads:

"It is exceedingly pertinent to state that the Japanese are invading the sugar beet industry not only as laborers but as proprietors. They are reported to be buying beet land as well as land in the cotton growing sections."

"The invasion has not assumed large proportions as yet, but in the future may and probably will, especially if other labor is not available, witness large numbers of the oriental race in possession of a considerable proportion of sugar beet and cotton areas of the country."

Hamilton and Faulkner wrote their report after visiting the state to investigate at the direction of Secretary Wilson, complaints against special orders allowing temporary importation of Mexican laborers into border states.

Mexicans Departed
San Francisco—Government agents have been active in California of late rounding up and deporting Mexicans alleged to have violated contracts under which they came to this country to relieve the farm labor shortage.

Deportation hearings involving Mexicans now are under way in Oakland, Salinas and other cities.

In Arizona it has been charged that scores of Mexicans have crossed the border under the agreement permitting them to perform seasonal labor and then return to Mexico, only to disappear soon after reaching this country.

G. O. P. MONEY RAISING PLAN IS NEW "LEAD"

Cox and Moore Discuss Testimony to Be Given Fund Investigators.

REVEALS PRIVATE LETTER

Instructions to G. O. P. Money Raisers Made Public by Nominee.

(By L. C. Martin)

By United Press Leased Wire
Chicago—Governor Cox, the democratic presidential nominee, discussed the senate "slush fund" investigation here today with E. H. Moore, his campaign manager, who is scheduled to present new "leads" to the senate committee next week.

Moore called briefly with Cox in the governor's private car which remained in Chicago less than two hours. Together they went over the information Moore plans to give the senate committee Tuesday, to help it discover evidence which Moore says will prove conclusively Cox's charge that the republican national organization set to collect a "corruption fund" of $15,000,000 or $15,000,000 to "buy an underdog on the government."

Part of the evidence Moore plans to give the committee consists of a circular as "form 101," said to be the plan for collecting large sums in the big cities, through a secret organization which Moore charges, was under direction of a professional money raiser.

Cox read from form 101 and an accompanying quota sheet in his Pittsburgh speech when he charged that $3,145,000 was to be raised in 51 cities in 27 states.

"Campaign plan, larger cities" is the heading of form 101, a copy of which was made available to the United Press here today.

The sheet bears the office address here of the treasurer of the republican national committee and the date June 14, 1920.

Under the heading "Chairman and executive committee," the circular says:

"Secure as chairman for the campaign men widely known and of commanding influence. Have them appoint strong representative executive committees of at least 12 men. It may require two or three days to secure such a committee but it must be handpicked."

Then follow instructions for arranging for a committee luncheon to be addressed by some "inspirational speaker" who will "get the sights of everyone of the committeemen high as to the amounts to be asked from big business men. The time has arrived when some prospects should be asked for subscriptions ranging from $5,000 and upwards."

Speaking of "prospect lists," the circular says:

"In a city the size of St. Louis, Cleveland or Detroit, a gilt edge list of at least 4,000 names should be secured. This list should contain only the names of prospects able to give from $100 up."

Next come instructions for "estimating" how much ought to be contributed by individual "prospects."

A "cream list" of good prospects is provided for, to be given as "a special favor to team captains."

Detailed instructions for organizing teams of "republican business men" under captains, and for holding daily luncheons to report on progress with the prospects are contained. The circular continues:

Secretary Enjoined
"Arrange a dinner to which all the prospects shall be invited. The national headquarters will furnish a speaker of national reputation to inform and enthrall. Each of those attending will be privileged to pay for his dinner."

Under the caption "Do not print instructions," this appears:

"No instructions to team captains or workers should be printed, as care must be used that nothing is left on tables at luncheons or dinners that might fall into the hands of anyone that might give publicity to such material."

The circular is signed "Harry M. Blair."

Blair is assistant treasurer of the republican committee.

According to Moore, form 101 was accompanied by a "quota list" for cities, such as Cox read. Will Hays, republican chairman and Fred Upham, treasurer, said that the plan outlined in form 101 was never put into operation. It was rejected, they said, in favor of Hays' "decentralized" collection plan.

STREET CAR CRASHES
INTO BUS AT MENASHA

One of the buses used by the Appleton-Neenah bus line was struck by a traction company car in Menasha Thursday evening between 5:50 and 6 o'clock. The bus had just rounded the corner of Third and Racine streets, and had stopped to take on a passenger. The street car could not stop in time to prevent a collision. The interurban line's front light was broken, but the bus was practically undamaged.

Heroism Of Sub Crew And Saviours Meets Traditions Of Navy

U. S. MUST HAVE GREATEST NAVY

Harding Condemns Resort to Abuse in the Presidential Campaign.

By United Press Leased Wire
Marion, Ohio—America should have the most effective and most dependable navy in the world, Senator Warren G. Harding declared today.

This declaration was made temporarily during his speech to the naval recruiting fund which gave a coast on the evening lawn today.

"I want America to have the most effective and most dependable navy in the world," Harding said.

Harding particularly lamented resort to abuse, appeals to momentary clamor and attempt to drag the public into the mire during the campaign. No mention was made of Governor Cox or of the opposing political parties.

Harding outlined his campaign creed as follows:

"I owe it to the men and women of America to guard against all pretense."

"I owe it to them to state fully and clearly my beliefs with all the sincerity there is in me."

"I must not, as I seek to gain votes for my party, yield to the temptation which often comes to men who are candidates to make false appeals and appeals which, though they might be successful at the moment, do not serve truth or do not meet the requirements of our national dignity."

"I must not drag the attention of the American people into a mire when it is their whole-hearted desire that their attention should be centered upon the problems which we all wish to face bravely and wisely together."

"I must concentrate my attention upon construction and not abuse."

"I must be patient and tolerant with those Americans who may differ with me."

"I must assume an attitude which is firm, but is ever listening to the voice of the people and ever watchful to preserve our constitutional rights to representative government, rather than government by propaganda and executive powers."

"Every citizen must realize that America wants deeds rather than words and that the proper solution of pressing problems is more important than appeal for momentary favor."

WANTS BETTER SYSTEM
FOR MARKETING PRODUCTS

By United Press Leased Wire
Topeka, Kan.—Bernard M. Baruch, former head of the U. S. war industries board, who is in Kansas studying the question of cooperative marketing as applied to farmers, stated today that he intends to consult with Herbert Hoover, former food administrator, with the idea of working out a cooperative marketing system.

Baruch said he believed millions of dollars could be saved the producers if a better system of distribution could be worked out. Co-operative marketing system could be inaugurated.

Baruch declined to discuss political questions further than to deny the report he is to direct the "boiler plate" campaign for the democrats.

"A man will be able to go to bed in Chicago and wake up in New York the next morning," he said.

The proposed airship, he said, will carry 26 passengers, 1500 pounds of express and fuel for a 24 hours flight. Eventually, Lawson expects to operate airships between all big cities.

EXPECT COX TO DRAW
RECORD CROWD TO FAIR

By United Press Leased Wire
Milwaukee—Governor James M. Cox, democratic candidate for president, who will speak at the West Allis fairgrounds this afternoon, is expected to draw a record-breaking crowd to the Wisconsin state fair today, the closing day of the 1920 exhibition.

Yesterday's attendance totalled 31,329, as against 55,403 for the fifth day of the 1919 fair.

The total attendance for the first five days of this year's fair, however, was 311,295, several thousand more than last year.

Stirring Tales Are Told by Crew of Submarine Under Water 40 Hours.

By United Press Leased Wire
Hoboken, N. J.—Three new naval heroes today received the plaudits of seafaring men along the Hoboken waterfront.

They were Lieut. Commander Charles M. Cooke, of the U. S. submarine S-5 and Engineers William Grace and H. McWilliam, of the Panama liner General Goethals.

Recital of the dramatic rescue at sea in the early morning hours yesterday morning of the 37 imprisoned members of the crew of the submarine who had been below water, hope practically gone for 36 hours, was featured by the account by the Goethals' crew of the heroism of three men.

The Goethals was one of the rescue ships that saved the submarine's crew.

For nearly seven hours Grace and McWilliam with few other tools than a hand hatchet, fought the steel sides of the submarine, working against time to force holes through the shell before the small crew of the oxygen within the ship should be exhausted.

A series of small holes bored, the engineers lay back, exhausted, while other sailors battered with crow-bars between the perforations. Finally the hole was large enough for the men in the submarine to escape and the two engineers were taken back to their ship to rest while the rescued men were pulled one by one from the S-5.

Lieut. Commander Cooke, in keeping with the best naval traditions, refused to leave the submarine until every member of the crew was out.

The Goethals arrived here late yesterday having left the scene of the accident after the rescue had been completed.

Rescue Is Completed
Philadelphia—Rescue of the imprisoned sailors of the submarine S-5 off the Delaware capes early yesterday was accomplished barely in time to save their lives, according to stories brought ashore by the crew of the destroyer Billings, one of the vessels that went to the submarine's aid.

Her head pointing down and her stern projecting into the air because of flooded forward compartments, the submarine's crew was forced to close the water-tight doors between the sections and take refuge in the aft compartments where they were jammed together with practically no air.

Before they could close the doors leading to the flooded compartments, water seeped into the aft compartments, and by mixing with the sulphuric acid of the ship's batteries, generated chlorine which almost suffocated the crew.

Start Naval Inquiry
Washington—A naval court of inquiry will be called at once to investigate the accident to the submarine S-5, Secretary of the Navy Daniels announced today.

Daniels pointed out that the convening of a court of inquiry was a matter of form in all such mishaps and should not be taken as a reflection on the men or officers of the submarine.

Newport News, Va.—The U. S. B. steamer Alanthus which first discovered the plight of the submarine S-5 off Delaware capes late Thursday, arrived off Sewells point today.

According to members of the crew an undershirt waving from the stern of the disabled submarine first attracted their attention. They lashed the partially submerged S-5 to the Alanthus stern and cut a small hole through the submarine's stern through which air was pumped until the transport General Goethals came up and removed the crew.

Captain J. J. Johnson was in command of the Alanthus.

ARMY COURT TO TRY
KIDNAPERS OF EDITOR

By United Press Leased Wire
Houston, Texas—The military court of inquiry probing the attempted "arrest" of G. V. Sanders, editor of the Houston Press at Houston Monday night by three national guards officers, was scheduled to draw up a report today preliminary to the general court martial of the officers Sept. 7.

Sanders, Mayor Ammerman, of Houston, and M. E. Foster, editor of the Houston Chronicle, who rescued Sanders from the alleged abductors testified before the court late yesterday.

It was expected Sanders will go to Galveston to testify at the court martial Sept. 7. Col. Billie Mayfield, provost marshal at Galveston who has assumed full responsibility of the Houston case, will also be tried by the court martial.

ONE KILLED, TWO HURT
WHEN TRAIN HITS AUTO

Milwaukee, Wis.—The man killed when a train crashed into the auto in which he was riding near here Thursday night, was identified today as Ovie Sigwart, of Duluth, Minn. His two companions who were seriously injured are still confined to a hospital here.

The man killed here Thursday night by a street car has not been identified. Sixteen persons were injured, three seriously, in accidents here yesterday and last night.

MAGSWINEY IS STILL LIVING; PLAN FUNERAL

Preparations Are Being Made for Demonstrations in England and Erin.

SEND APPEAL TO WILSON

President Is Asked to Plead for Irish Hunger Striker's Release.

By United Press Leased Wire
London—Believing the death of Lord Mayor MacSwiney is a "foregone conclusion," his friends today were planning huge funeral demonstrations throughout England and Ireland.

"The body probably will remain in England a week because of the coroner's inquest and other red tape," said Arthur O'Brien, president of the Gaelic League.

"Then we will hold gigantic public services in London, followed by even larger ones in Cork and Dublin and services on a small scale in all parts of Ireland and England."

Irish newspaper publishers also were planning to capitalize the dramatic settings of MacSwiney's imprisonment and probable death. They will appeal to Irish in England, Scotland, Australia, Canada and the United States to "make a protest that will shake the foundations of the British empire."

MacSwiney, on the twenty-third day of his hunger strike, was said by his relatives to be "sinking fast," although Downing street reported his condition was unchanged.

THE ISSUE TUESDAY

Every vote cast for John J. Blaine for governor and James Thompson for senator will be leading Wisconsin that much nearer state socialism. The Non-Partisan league, an organization committed to state socialism and anti-American to the core, is working hand in hand with Sen. La Follette to nominate this ticket in Wisconsin. The Non-Partisan league is repudiated by the American Society of Equity, it is utterly hostile to the doctrines and records of both the Republican and Democratic parties, it is founded on dangerous and insidious radicalism. It is the outgrowth of the extreme anti-Americanism fostered by opposition to the war, and by the efforts of wild-eyed fanatics to capitalize discontent in the United States for the overthrow of its institutions.

Mr. Blaine is the nominee for the Non-Partisan League. Mr. Thompson is the nominee of the Non-Partisan league. They also are the personally selected candidates of Senator La Follette, who is leaving no stone unturned to intensify class antagonism in Wisconsin and to direct its affairs into the channels of state socialism. La Follette, embittered by the terrible indictment of his war utterances and acts by the American people, is apparently seeking revenge by trying to turn Wisconsin's government and representation at Washington over to radicals who would ruin the state if clothed with the power to carry out their program.

His attitude in this primary and election and his affiliation with the Non-Partisan league for the purpose of this campaign are as great an affront to the intelligent, rock-ribbed American citizens of Wisconsin as it is possible to offer. It has been exceeded only by his attitude during the war. Mr. La Follette has repudiated the Republican party and it has repudiated him. They have nothing whatever in common. He is still masquerading under that title, but he has no right to it. If Blaine and Thompson are nominated the Republican party in this state has passed out of existence and turned its affairs over bodily to the notorious Non-Partisan league.

Mr. La Follette and his candidates are preaching the most infamous doctrines of class-hatred. One of the methods of the Blaine-Thompson-La Follette-Non-Partisan league campaign is to flood the state with such untruths as the statement that 65 per cent of the wealth of the country is owned by two per cent of the people and that seventy million of the people do not own their own homes. It is on a par with the falsehood circulated concerning the railroad act, which these radicals say guarantees to the owners dividends, whereas nothing of the kind is guaranteed. Every owner of a home in America knows that every other man can acquire and own a home if he is industrious, sober, saving and reliable. Those who do not work or squander what they earn will not become home owners. Every man in America who is in comfortable circumstances knows that every other man can become so who is thrifty, diligent, honest and persistent. Every man of wealth in America knows the avenue is open to every other man to attain wealth. Every man who has achieved fame knows the road is open to the deserving to reach this goal. No man in this country ever became truly successful who did not work hard and long, who did not make early and frequently prolonged sacrifices.

How many farmers in Wisconsin, how many in Outagamie county, own their own farms? How did they get them? Did they work for them, or were they handed to them on platters by the Non-Partisan league and by state socialism? Did the farmer toil early and late and hard for his own, or was it the fanatics and agitators going up and down the state who gave him what he has and made him independent? Or perhaps it is wrong that we should have prosperous, land owning farmers. Perhaps they would work harder and produce more if the fruits of their labor went to the state for the sustenance of Tom, Dick and Harry, for the indolent and the agitators.

Did state socialism or bolshevism take the humble Abraham Lincoln from a log hut and make him president of the great United States, or was it understanding drunk from books by the light of the log fire, scant means wrung from rail splitting, diligent application to the law and years of self-sacrifice, persistence, determination? Did individual merit and greatness make Lincoln the savior of the Union and inspiration to the nation he always will be, or did he climb from obscurity and poverty to world fame on the golden ladder of state socialism, Non-Partisan leaguism, I. W. Wism, bolshevism or any of the other isms which seek to destroy individualism and reduce all to the level of the lowest?

Does the self-respecting workingman, owning his own comfortably furnished home, surrounded with a family, slowly but surely making his way in the world, believe he ought to turn that home and that progress over to some worthless bum who won't work, who wastes what he does earn, who is irresponsible, unreliable, shiftless? Does he want to take away from that promising son the opportunity to build better than he has builded, to become perhaps a successful merchant, lawyer, doctor, engineer and to have and enjoy the fruits of his worth and his efforts?

If he does he will lend his vote and his influence to the establishment of state socialism, Non-Partisan leaguism and the destruction of that individualism through which all the progress the world has ever made has been wrought. He will help to set one class against another because it possesses more than the other, because it has better education and equipment than another, because it works harder than another, because it has greater ability and fitness than another. He will help to take even Mr. La Follette's automobile and home and means and station from him and turn them over to collective society for the benefit of the improvident and the worthless.

How many bank presidents in this town, in this state, in this country, came from the farm or the shop or the lowly home, or from parents who toiled by the sweat of their brow? How many railroad presidents, how many captains of industry, how many successful lawyers, how many of our great statesmen? How many did not come up from the ranks? Or were they planted where they are by state socialism, by I. W. Wism, by the Non-Partisan league?

That is the issue in Wisconsin. It is the issue of this primary next Tuesday, it is the issue of the election in this state next November. La Follettism has become Townleyism. Radicalism and state socialism seek to supplant stability, opportunity, individuality, real worth, tested American institutions. Are we going to turn Wisconsin over to the Non-Partisan league or are we going to preserve it as it has come down to us, a commonwealth where men can remain their own masters, make their own destinies, live their own lives, profit by their own exertion, their own worth, their own resourcefulness?

Blaine and Thompson are of, by and for the Non-Partisan league—a something created to overthrow the existing order of society and governmental institutions. La Follette has joined that procession. He shunted himself into it during the war. It is that brand of state socialism—that alchemy, which would make paupers of the well-to-do, gentlemen of leisure of the ne'er-dowells and Trotskyes of the agitators.

It is that brand of so-called "reform" which would take from public life our greatest presidents, and men nearer home like Senator Lenroot, Roy P. Wilcox and other distinguished, efficient, useful servants of the people. If you desire to vote for state socialism and the Non-Partisan league of North Dakota Tuesday, vote for Blaine and Thompson. If you wish to vote for the great state of Wisconsin vote for Blaine and Lenroot.

HEALTH TALKS

BY WILLIAM BRADY, M. D.

Noted Physician and Author.
Dr. Brady will answer all signed letters pertaining to health. Writers' names are never printed. Only inquiries of general interest are answered in this column, but all letters are answered by mail if written in ink and a stamped, self-addressed envelope is enclosed. Requests for diagnosis or treatment of individual cases cannot be considered. Address Dr. William Brady, in care of this paper.

MR. AND MRS. SLOUCHER

The other day I sat holding Little White Friend while she ran in to change something or whatever it is women do in those large general stores, and in the few seconds she was gone I saw a crowd of pedestrians passing by. Of the nine thousand, eighty-seven, buried under the ground, I saw not one, nor left, but mostly down, and one could recognize about them certain other characteristic resemblances which distinguish the Sloucher family.

Mr. Sloucher announced himself half a block away by turning out his toes, street-car conductor fashion, and throwing out what he mistakes for a chest, namely, his stomach. Mr. Sloucher preambles along the street as though he were pushing a couple of luggage vans up and by the strength of his abdomen alone. When Sloucher first discovers that his stomach is getting ahead of him he doesn't undertake to hold it back; he just lets it go and permits the tailor to camouflage the protuberance to the best of his ability. It is a "high" stomach. Sloucher very likely feels a little pride in it, at least after he has passed life's meridian. It is rather unfortunate that the great army of Slouchers are permitted to push luggage vans around with them all the time and so seldom brought up against an occasion which impresses upon them the error of their ways. This is the sad part of a sedentary life.

Mrs. Sloucher, on the other hand, is a different creature, though her artifices become only too apparent when you view her from a distance of twenty or more feet. She looks like the very deuce, no matter how expensively corrected nor how extravagantly gowned nor how theatrically shod she may be. She just hasn't got the form.

It is chiefly the feet that women misuse. The feet are terrible. It has become almost de rigueur, one might deduce from the passing show, for women to wear the most freakish of dress shoes on the public streets. Extremest French heels and the most deforming pointed toes, causing the poor creature to walk for all the world like a horse, with a hip motion resembling a baby tank crossing an orchard.

The Sloucher family suffers much more in impaired health and reduced efficiency, than in mere appearance, from lack of exercise for the trunk. A great many more ills than you will develop by suggestion in a whole day's reading of the patent medicine testimonials are really attributable to unused trunk muscles, or rather to atrophy and weakening of the unused muscles, from age at a single glance anywhere—youth uses the trunk muscles and hence retains a graceful figure; age does neither.

Here we leave the reader in the air, as usual, but not helpless. If you think your trunk will stand a little improvement, write for the corrective exercises.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

Alas, Then Raven Locks

Five years ago I had a head of fine raven black hair. I was pretty proud of it. Today it is not only going, but it is falling fast. What I want is a prescription for something which will permanently restore the black color to my gray hair. (G. L. W.)

ANSWER—George, remember me when you find that restorer. I'll need about two gross quart bottles of it. Meanwhile, entrust the dyeing job to some good old barber or hair dresser. Of course all so-called "restorers" or dyes give only temporary success. It is perfectly proper to have the hair dyed, if necessary. Only beware of amateurs and of poisonous or irritating preparations.

Valuable Heart Trouble
I have valvular heart trouble. Should I take exercise? Some doctors advise exercise. Others advise none. (E. K.)

ANSWER—I have not examined you and therefore I haven't the slightest idea whether the present state of your heart calls for rest or for exercise. Of course no treatment can be suggested. Of course no treatment can be suggested without knowledge of the functional state of the heart and of other organs. You are taking needless chances if you mean to experiment upon yourself. Rest today, very little exercise next week, considerable exercise next month—it all depends on the individual conditions. Send a stamped self-addressed envelope and repeat your query. If you would like to read a little dissertation on valvular heart disease.

TWENTY-FIVE YEARS AGO

Saturday, Sept. 7, 1905

Wilbur Willy and William J. Mory went to Green Lake for a several days' outing.

William Cahill's residence at 413 Story street, was totally destroyed by fire.

A grand charity ball and promenade concert was to be given at Central Music hall on Sept. 15 by the German Ladies' Aid society.

Albert Beam of the town of Maine killed a bear in his cornfield that weighed 139 pounds dressed.

L. D. Smith, agent of the Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul Railway company, and Ernest Harrison of the Northwestern Railway company, left for Boston to attend the sixth annual convention of the International Association of Ticket Agents.

The interior arrangement at the postoffice was being changed by the addition of wire window partitions with doors and locks. The carriers' department was entirely separated from the general delivery, mailing and money order departments.

The country in the vicinity of Appleton was getting very dry and rain was prayed for with great fervency. The roads were covered with bottomless dust and the grass was all brown. The reflection of a swamp fire was seen in the sky the night previous.

The Juvenile band was to give a picnic and open air concert at Pierce's park the day following.

The Chicago Chronicle had a special car in the city with a corps of ten men who were distributing sample copies and were working up a demand for it at the local news depots.

The Continental was advertising all wool Scotch Cheviot suits for boys, ages 13 to 18 years, hand somely made and trimmed, at $2.75 each.

TOO FLIPPANT, SAY EUGENIC EXPERTS

Herne Bay, Eng.—The Summer School of Eugenics here has been called a school for engaged or courting couples. Officials of the school are annoyed at the flippancy of such statements and declare there isn't an engaged couple attending—that the school is a serious study of heredity, biology, psychology, and the social application of eugenics.

CHARGES OHIO LAWS LAX ON AUTO CROOKS
Columbus, O.—Ohio laws are lax with crooks who beat insurance companies. It was revealed by the release of three men, who admitted in court they had "famed" the theft of a car. The insurance was to be collected by the owner, while the "stolen" car was to be sold by the others and the proceeds of the insurance and car sale split. The men were freed with a reprimand. Insurance companies will ask the next legislature to pass adequate laws protecting them from such practices.

Mugs of the Mighty

By Frederic J. Haaklin

Washington, D. C.—Washington now has one of the most interesting "court painters" it has ever known. Miss Noretta McCormick Smith, who has painted President Wilson, Governor Cox, Senator Harding, Secretary Daniels, Governor Smith of New York, and a host of other celebrities, has decided to settle down in Washington and devote her time to immortalizing the nation's best known faces.

Knowing something of Miss Smith's achievements as a painter of the great, the reporter expected to be greeted by a learned lady of uncertain age, who would discourse weightily on the mission of her art. The Miss Smith who led us into her hotel apartment was a blonde little girl of possibly 23 years.

Mrs. Smith who is naturally proud of her daughter's fame, did most of the talking.

"Before she knew her letters," said Mrs. Smith, "Noretta always wanted to hold a pencil or crayon and illustrate the little stories I read to her. I always told her the queer little figures were beautiful, so she kept on drawing her lesson papers at school, and often in her play time.

"When she was about four, we took her to an art gallery, and her delight in the pictures attracted the attention of a French artist who was visiting the gallery. He followed her about, listening to her comments, and when he left he said, 'Madame, your child will be a great painter!'

"At the time, we were amused rather than impressed by the Frenchman's enthusiasm, but when Noretta was nine, she painted these—" and Mrs. Smith indicated two little oil paintings, copies of famous likenesses of Raphael and Shakespeare.

A Child Wonder
The work was crude, but the features could be easily recognized, and for a child of nine, who had never had an art lesson in her life, well, they convinced Mrs. Smith that her daughter was destined to be an artist.

Not until she was 14, however, did Noretta Smith go to an art school. She studied three years at the Art Students' League in New York, and at the National Academy of Design under George Maynard, whom she considers one of the finest teachers in this country.

"I have never studied abroad," Miss Smith says. "There is so much to learn in this country, and we have such talented teachers here that I should be ashamed to go to Europe to study, though some day when I have time, I do want to travel."

She believes that American art schools are at last coming into their own, and that students of the future will no longer feel that they must hasten to Paris and starve in a garret, so that they may say they have been taught by the great French artist, Monsieur X.

Little Miss Smith does not conform rigidly to any school of art. She is "working things out" for herself, as she says. She is decidedly not an impressionist, but inclines rather to realism. She likes to paint officials and prominent men, and she is working steadily with the problems that apply to this particular kind of portrait painting.

For instance, she paints so that her work can be seen at close range—an important point, as portraits in public buildings are not always hung where a long view is possible. Then, she paints her sitters in their most favorable and natural pose. A portrait to adorn a private mansion is made primarily to please only a few people, and they may request that a thoughtful or animated expression be caught by the artist. But an official likeness should convey the impression of the man as he is generally known. To achieve this, Miss Smith places her sitter in a comfortable chair, and encourages him to talk with her as she works. With anyone as pleasant to look at as Miss Smith, this business of being natural is quite simple.

Faces Much Hot Air
What the celebrities have told her in these informal conversations might make fascinating copy, but she refuses to divulge any of it.

Most of her portraits are developed with plain black or unobtrusive tapestry back grounds. Surroundings should not be noticeable, she believes, but as you look at the sitters, you should see only the stars of the scene. The effect of this method is well illustrated in her striking portrait of Governor Cox, which has a soft black background, perfectly plain, so that the head of the governor stands out with lifelike distinctness. This painting is considered one of Miss Smith's best pieces of work. So many people have come to see and admire it, in the studio at her hotel apartment, that she had almost no time to paint, until finally it was moved to one of the hotel parlors.

George White, National Democratic Committee Chairman, who stopped by to see it there the other day, was much impressed. "It's Jimmie himself!" exclaimed Mr. White.

Governor Cox is expected to drop in to see himself on canvas when he comes to Washington.

"Governor Cox's shows strong character," Miss Smith says. "His expression is straightforward, and he has great power of concentration, as you can see from his keen blue eyes."

Miss Smith described Senator Harding's coloring as beautiful. "He has wonderful hazel eyes and white hair. Likeness is, I think the most important feature of a portrait, and beauty of color is next," she went on.

The greatest difficulty in portrait painting, she believes, is chosen on the spot. The boss or the special sitters requires the most careful study, even more than the expression of the face.

"I like to work from life. I went to President Wilson's office to sketch him as he signed papers or talked with me. The last sitting he gave me was the day he left for France the second time. He had a meeting of the Cabinet at the President's Room at the Capitol, and while he talked and signed documents I got my final impressions.

Painted Cox from Life
"Governor Cox came to my studio for several sittings. But Admiral Peary's portrait, which I am still working on, had to be made from four photographs already taken. We decided upon the most representative features of the different pictures and made a composite portrait from them."

One of the unusual features about Miss Smith's work is that instead of buying large assortment of paints used by most artists she selects her palette with only white, yellow, yellow ochre, burnt sienna, vermilion, blue and black. From the three primary colors she mixes practically all the colors needed for any picture.

Miss Smith's philosophy is that everyone in any line of work should try to find new methods and do the thing in his own way. She follows her own rule that to succeed one must have imagination, and industry to back it. She has always been a dreamer, and right now she is planning a book of Arabian fairy stories. But while she dreams she is hard at work, as a long list of pictures and her career testify.

John Singer Sargent and Seymour Thomas are the only painters besides Miss Smith to whom President Wilson has sat. The President is said to have remarked that he liked her portrait best of the three, but Miss Smith says modestly that Sargent's portrait of the President is his best work. She is proudest of having painted the President, and the coming President—whichever he is—and after that she likes to remember that she won the gold medal of the National Academy of Design in 1915, before she had graduated.

As for the future, she finds Washington so much more homelike than New York and so full of fascinating types that she expects to live here. She falls in with the members of the diplomatic corps households. She is at liberty to give the names of the sitters at present. One of them, an ambassador's wife, is to be painted in her national costume, which will be a novelty for the artist, after a long siege of frock coats and uniforms. Then she is commissioned to paint more cabinet officers, and after March 4 there will be an entirely new assortment of famous folk who will no doubt follow the crowd to be done by the youngest court painter the Capitol ever had.

Talks on Citizenship

The Primary Election

We are all aware that our political parties are very active in these days. This is quite proper, since the parties are organized primarily for the purpose of nominating and electing candidates to office. Each party has its national, state, county and local organization that it might do this work most effectively.

If the people are to be quite fairly represented in our republic, the voters must have a very direct control over the selection of nominees for office. If a party "boss" or some special interest is able to select the candidates on each ticket, it makes little difference which candidate is chosen on election day. The boss or the special interest will doubtless be favored at the expense of the public good.

Two methods have been and are still being employed for the purpose of nominating candidates. One is called the caucus and Convention system and the other the Primary Election. Since our state primary is to be held next Tuesday, it may be of special interest to present a few of its characteristic features this week.

It has been claimed that the Caucus and Convention affords great opportunity for the boss or the special interest to dictate party nominations—to put through a previously arranged "slate." As a consequence, Wisconsin, and a number of other states have adopted the primary election system for the nomination of candidates.

Any person wishing to be nominated for office secures a certain number of signatures to a petition. The number is so small that it is easy to meet the requirements. The petition is filed with the clerk of the political unit in which the office is located a certain number of days before the Primary Election. For example candidates for state offices must file their petitions with the Secretary of State, those for county offices with the County Clerk, and those for city offices with the City Clerk. The clerk then prints the primary ballots. There is one ballot for each political party. This ballot has printed upon it the names of the offices to be filled and the names of the candidates for each office. The Party ballots are of the same size and fastened together at the top. Each ballot is perforated near the upper end so it can be easily torn out.

Our Primary Election Day, which is the first Tuesday in September—next Tuesday—all voters go to the polls. Upon entering the polling place each voter should give his or her name and address if in the city, then receive from the ballot clerks a primary ballot. Upon receiving it, the voter steps into the voting booth, tears out the ballot of the party for which he wishes to vote and follows the directions at the top of the ballot.

After marking the ballot as directed he folds it so it cannot be read, also folds the remaining unused ballot and hands both to the person at the ballot box, again giving his name. He should see that his ballot is placed in the ballot box. The voter then passes out.

Every patriotic voter should become informed regarding the various candidates, then go to the Primary next Tuesday and help nominate for each office that person who in his judgment will serve most faithfully the highest interests of the people.

After the polls close the votes for each candidate are counted. The person receiving the highest number of votes for each office on each party ballot becomes the nominee of that party for that office and his name is placed upon the ballot to be used at the November election.

(Next Saturday Professor Kinsman will discuss "Nomination by Convention.")

ANSWERS TO QUESTIONS

Women May Lose Citizenship
Mrs. E. R. asks: Is it true that a woman who is a citizen of the United States loses her citizenship when she marries an alien?

Reply
Yes. The federal law provides that the citizenship of the husband determines that of the wife. Not only is it true that a woman citizen upon marrying an alien becomes herself an alien, but a woman alien upon marrying a citizen becomes a citizen. Another man made law you say. Maybe, but Congress can change it.

Qualifications for voters
Mrs. L. D. asks: What qualifications must a woman have in order to vote?

Women Vote With the Men
Mrs. A. K. asks: Will there be a separate ballot box for women?

Reply
No. Since women vote for all officers, they will vote at the same polling place, use the same ballots and deposit the ballots in the same box with the men.

Political Parties Necessary
Mr. O. K. asks: Why should there be political parties?

Reply
The same as a man. She must be a citizen of the United States and twenty-one years of age. She must also have lived in the state one year and in the election district where she offers to vote ten days.

With disappointment regarding the political action fresh in mind, it is no surprise to have the question raised. Although under the influence of party bosses, parties may fail to record the will of any considerable element of its adherents, nevertheless they have been found to be the most effective means for expressing the popular will. They crystallize governmental policies and enable the voter to express his choice of them. It is the purpose of party leaders ordinarily to gather into one party platform that group of policies desired the majority of voters. An independent thoughtful suffrage is the most effective means to make them do so.

BAYFIELD COUNTY IS IN NEED OF MORE TNT

Washburn, Wis.—According to a notice issued by V. E. Brubaker, county agricultural agent, the supply of TNT blasting powder for the farmers of Bayfield county will be distributed September 14. The total allotment of 26,000 pounds, which was assigned to Bayfield county, has been distributed as equally as possible in the different towns in the county but this amount was not enough to supply the requests that were made to the county agent. The powder is stored in the magazines at the Parkside plant of the Du Pont Co., and will be packed into cartridges at the plant and shipped in large lots to the most convenient towns, from which it will be delivered to the farmers. It was at first planned to sell to each farmer making application, 200 pounds, but when the supply available was cut down it was deemed advisable to cut the allotments to 100 pounds and even then there was not enough to fill the orders.

There's Local Color in these Fall Suits at

$45 $50 and $60

You can tell that every suit in this stock was picked purposely for Appleton men—because they look it.

Take this slate gray for instance—doesn't it put you in mind of a certain real estate man?

Here's a blue pin stripe that looks all the world like a young Appleton man whose business is banking.

And this brown overplaid you see hits a well known grocer to a T—even tho' its color is Coffee.

It doesn't make any difference what business you are in—we have made it our business to match it.

There is a Fall suit here for every local man.

When are you coming to see yours?

CONFESSIONS OF A BRIDE
THE BOOK OF ANN.

The Beauty of Miss Columbia Excludes Mr. Jealousy.

By the time we were all attired for the ballet of the ballots, Jim had welcomed the crowd, and the mayor and the governor and Martha Palmer had made their little speeches. All with vast success, we judged, as the applause floated back to the bungalows where we were dressing.

I was too tired to care much about the show. I simply wanted to get through with it, to count it as a thing of the past. The careless way in which Ann had disposed of the girls' rings made me nervous, and I supposed Katherine Miller's loveliness exasperated and depressed me.

She was not one of a chorus, as I was. She was Miss Columbia, unique and superb. She was not a haughty Columbia arrayed in dignified draperies of silk as stiff as armor, but the Columbia of a dream world, draped in layers of diaphanous nets, a vision of the red, white and blue personified.

Cherry greeted her as she emerged from the darkness of the trees and advanced majestically to a huge natural boulder in the meadow, which anybody could plainly see Nature had planted there especially for our "pretend" Plymouth Rock. A hidden arrangement of powerful fans stirred her draperies and blew her magnificent hair about her very magnificent self.

"Such hair! Such hair!" ran my jealous thought, and I tried to find my husband's fault in it. I wanted to know how the vision affected him, and because I could not find him, I assumed that he must be deeply moved by it!

Only my own need to listen, for my cue forced me to give up my search for Bob.

Columbia, in the ballet, was plagued by a horde of evil gnomes. Our nice boy scouts obligingly masqueraded as these wicked creatures, that they were willing to take the parts after they learned that their faces would be covered and that we wouldn't put their names on the program! Not one of them was willing to be set down as "greed," or profiteer, or selfishness, or fraud, or anti-Americanism, or any other of the horrid enemies that danced around Columbia and tantalized her like wicked gnats.

Columbia, with many a vain command, bade them away and depart.

Sister Mary's Kitchen

Home-made ice cream has a taste and lure that is impossible to find in the "boughten" variety no matter how expensive the caterer's product may be.

Other things being equal the price of home-made is less than that of confectionery ice cream.

The one reason most home-keepers hesitate to make their own frozen desserts is because of the labor involved. But there are freezers on the market that require no "freezing." That is, the turning of the freezer is not necessary and the cream is of a perfectly smooth texture.

If you have coffee or baking powder cans that are absolutely waterproof, you can make your own freezer. Use a can that has a radius of at least five inches larger than that of the can. Pack the can in ice and salt and pour a very strong brine over the packing. The brine assists in the freezing and in procuring a smooth cream.

The first hour that the cream is freezing, scrape down the sides of the mold with a stiff spatula four or five times. If the cream is frozen and you are not ready to serve it, drain off some of the brine and add more salt and ice, using less brine. Cover closely and let stand till needed.

Mousses do not require beating during freezing. All creams with a custard foundation are better if frozen without being disturbed. Ices and sherbets are equally as good when allowed to freeze without the dasher being turned.

REDUCED RAILROAD FARES FOR RED ARROW VETERANS

A special railroad passenger rate of one and one-third for this round trip has been granted to members of the Thirty-Second division who are to attend the first annual reunion in Milwaukee September 19, according to information received Saturday from Arthur Hantschel, Appleton man who is secretary for the reunion. Red Arrow men who wish to take advantage of this rate are to apply to Col. Paul B. Clemens, Superior, Wis., for special rate blank. This blank is necessary before the reduced fare ticket can be obtained.

Dozens of Appleton veterans of the Red Arrow division are preparing to attend the big meeting. A large majority of the division officers, including General William G. Hanna, will be in attendance. One feature of the reunion will be a memorial address by Chase Osborn, former governor of Michigan, who will speak Sunday evening, September 19.

REDS TURN TABLES AND WIN "WORLD SERIES" GAME

After losing the first and second games by one and two-run margins, the "Reds" came back Friday and trounced the White Sox 8 to 7 on the Y. M. C. A. playground. The game was even closer and more interesting than its predecessors.

Podzinski's neat double in the ninth inning with two on bases, was the deciding factor in the game. "Pete" Brisee, the Red pitcher, hit his second home run of the three-day season, but it counted only one tally.

By winning Saturday afternoon's game the Reds will make games two all, and a deciding game will be played later.

Chamber of Commerce Should Keep in Close Touch With Its City.

(This is another of a series of articles written by Hugh G. Corbett, managing secretary of the Appleton Chamber of Commerce.)

(By Hugh G. Corbett)

The relations of a Chamber of Commerce to the community are many and varied, but in general way they may be divided into three distinct classes, namely, specific relations, general, and varied. The specific relations may be summarized as follows:

Specific

Your Chamber of Commerce, its officials, and its employees are always at your demand.

The business of keeping Appleton before the world will be looked after by the Publicity Committee. Conventions bring people here to pay for the privilege of advertising in this city.

The commercial field of Appleton is expanded daily. Buyers from the surrounding territory are brought here in large numbers and merchants are kept posted on business conditions throughout the year.

New industries are coming to Appleton and every facility is provided for ber of Commerce to the Community will be summarized as follows:

Viewed as an organization, the Chamber of Commerce is second to none. Its record as a medium for the concentrated thought and energy of the community stands out as its strongest recommendation.

The Chamber of Commerce lays no claim to infallibility. It will err, and will continue to make mistakes as long as its membership is composed of fallible Americans.

When Appleton stops growing the Chamber will cease to err.

A striking example of the vitality, texture and co-ordinate force of the Chamber of Commerce, may be had in the Member's Council. Here is an open forum where any question of interest to all the people may be threshed out. A more democratic or potent institution does not exist in any community.

SPECIAL COLLECTION TO HELP BUILD ONEIDA CHURCH

A special collection to aid members of the Oneida congregation to build a new church will be taken up at All Saints Episcopal church and in all recently . . .

The special collection was ordered by Bishop R. H. Weller of Fond du Lac. Members of the Oneida congregation started a fund among themselves to rebuild the church edifice immediately after the fire and their determination to re-build has caused the bishop to ask other members of the diocese to extend their aid.

CHICAGO ARTIST IS TO TEACH IN MADISON

Madison.—Arthur N. Colt of the Art Institute of Chicago, has been appointed instructor in the department of manual arts of the University of Wisconsin. Mr. Colt will conduct classes in advance drawing, painting and commercial art during the year 1920-21 in pursuance of the department's new policy for the introduction of vocational art in the university curriculum. Mr. Colt is an instructor in the Art Institute of Chicago and has been in touch with the latest developments of art instruction, acting as assistant to the visiting instructors, Bellows and Davies. He has had a thorough art training both in this country and abroad and is a painter as well as a teacher. At present he is engaged in painting a mural decoration for the League peace tribunal.

LARGE ENROLLMENT AS TRAINING SCHOOL OPENS

Outagamie County Training School, Kaukauna.—School re-opened Monday, August 30, with an enrollment above the average of the first week in previous years.

Extensive improvements were made in the building during the summer. The classrooms and office walls were tinted and floors and woodwork were given a new coat of varnish.

Miss M. Phillips was granted a year's leave of absence. Her position is being filled by Miss Peacock of the Lincoln County Training school.

Mr. Hagman and Miss Carter were at DePere Monday putting up the training school exhibit for the Brown County fair.

The demonstration school will open Tuesday, September 12.

Mona Muthig, Laura Glenzer and Mildred Speers of the class of 1920, visited at the training school Tuesday.

The Misses I. Glenzer, Lillian Glenzer, B. Paschen and E. Man, called at the training school Tuesday.

Agnes Jolin was called home by the death of her grandmother.

13 YEAR OLD BOY IS STAR GOLFER

Bubbie DeGuire, Small for His Age, Can Play With Best at Riverview.

Appleton has one of the youngest professional golfers in Wisconsin. It is not in the United States. Frank DeGuire, better known as "Bubbie" as assistant to Gwyn Bowen, Riverview country club professional, is only 13 years old but he shows signs of becoming a second Bobby Jones.

Despite his size, which is almost less than normal for his age, the boy can drive 225 yards, 25 more than a good woman golfer. He has done the nine-hole course in 40 and average 43, scores which rival those of many of the best adult golfers on the links.

This is his third year of employment with the local club, the first two years serving as caddy. He is as expert in repairing the sticks as he is in wielding them, and does a large share of the club's repairing work. Frequently, when a good golfer is needed to fill out a foursome, "Bubbie" is called upon.

He is the son of Mrs. Rose DeGuire, 705 Fremont street, and enters the eighth grade of Sacred Heart school Monday. He will continue to work for the country club after school hours.

MORE PULPWOOD IS COMING INTO VALLEY

The shipment of pulpwood to the mills of the Fox river valley has commenced and forty to sixty carloads arrived daily. Most of it is coming from northern Minnesota and is being distributed among the mills of Appleton, Kimberly and Combined Locks. Occasional carloads of the wood rafted across Lake Superior to Ashland are also arriving.

The Appleton Hub and Spoke factory has just received a large consignment of logs from the northern part of the state which is being unloaded in its yards.

GETS SICK AT WORK AND ASKS DAMAGES

Oscar Bayer Bases Claim for Compensation on Occupational Disease Clause.

The only claim in which testimony was taken by Thomas F. Konop, a member of the Wisconsin Industrial commission, at the courthouse Friday afternoon was that of Oscar J. Bayer vs. the Post Publishing company. Mr. Bayer suffered an attack of pneumonia Jan. 28, 1920, while in the employ-ment of the defendant, which he alleged was due to the frequent opening of the press room door near which he was at work and which permitted a current of cold air to strike him. His testimony was to the effect that he was seized with a chill and was ordered to bed by his physician, where he remained until March 20, when he was removed to St. Elizabeth hospital where he submitted to an operation made necessary by pleurisy which followed his attack of pneumonia. He was at the hospital until April 17 and had recovered sufficiently to go to work on June 12.

Bayer's case for action came under the occupational disease clause of the workmen's compensation act. The Inter-city Mutual Casualty company was also a defendant in this action.

REDS TROUNCE ST. LOUIS CARDS

Three Missouri Pitchers Are Mauling in Sluggest Friday Afternoon.

St. Louis—Cincinnati mauled three St. Louis pitchers for seventeen hits and won Friday's game by 13 to 5. League allowed but one hit in the six innings he pitched, retiring then to let Brennan, a recruit, finish the game.

Win First Home Game
Brooklyn—Grimes held Philadelphia to four scattered hits on Friday and Brooklyn celebrated its homecoming by a shutout victory, 6 to 0. The Dodgers made fourteen hits off Smith before he was taken out in the seventh inning. Wheat leading the swiftest with two triples and a double.

The largest crowd of the season saw the contest.

LEAGUE RACE IS CLOSEST IN YEARS

Seven Teams Are Battling for Prize Money in Major Circuits.

(By L. R. Blanchard)

By United Press Local Wire
Chicago.—Pounding down the home stretch, seven major league clubs today were fighting a neck-and-neck race for the leadership in their leagues and the opportunity to participate in the world series prize money.

Yesterday's race in the National league was almost a dead heat. Cincinnati, Brooklyn and the Giants held their position in that order by winning. Pittsburgh lost to the Cubs but didn't change its position. The heat within 15 points of Pittsburgh.

The Yankees signalled the return of Babe Ruth in the batting line-up by climbing into second place, administering a licking to Boston. They advanced from third place, displacing the White Sox, who lost to St. Louis.

The Tanks are now two points ahead of the White Sox and three points behind Cleveland. It will be possible for either Cleveland, New York or Chicago to be in any one of the first three positions tonight. Both the Tanks and the White Sox stage double bills today. Should the Tanks win both games they will land in first place, even though Cleveland should win its game against Detroit.

BEAT OSHKOSH IS BRANDT'S SLOGAN

Double Defeat for Leaders Will Give Appleton Chance at Pennant.

A double defeat for Oshkosh here next Monday afternoon will make the Fox River Valley league race almost as close as the final wretch contest in the two major leagues. While the Sawdust city aggregation now has a commanding lead, two losses would cut down its standing where other teams will have more of a chance.

Brandt's squad is tuned up for the battle and is confident of downing the champs. Sunday's game will give the boys batting practice when they line up against Menasha and they hope to be in shape to put up the best battle of the season on Labor Day.

Hank Schultz and his brother will work on the mound for Brandt in the Labor day battles. Both men are among the best in the state and can be relied upon to keep the opposing batters guessing.

The first game Monday afternoon is called for one o'clock.

MISKE WANTS BOUT TO GO TO DECISION

Referee Is to Be Selected Today for Title Bout on Labor Day.

(By United Press Local Wire)

Benton Harbor, Mich.—Selection of a referee and the deciding as to whether Monday's swiftest will be a decision or a no-decision affair was all that remained today to complete arrangements for the 10 round mix-up between Jack Dempsey, heavyweight champion, and Billy Miske, St. Paul.

State Boxing Commissioner Tom Bigger will confer today with Jack Kearns, manager of Dempsey, and Jack Reddy, representing Miske, on both subjects. No trouble will probably be with the fight.

Both subjects. No trouble is expected to develop over selection of a referee, though Eddy will probably try to get Kearns to agree to make the battle a decision affair. Kearns, however, is not likely to care to risk his protégé's title in a ten round bout.

This city began to receive its first big delegations of fight fans with the result that the town is filled with summer resorters, farmers, fans and sports. Benton Harbor is on Lake Michigan and popular among Chicagoans as a watering place.

Profiteering has been started by local merchants but has become so serious that the mayor has issued a warning to hotels and restaurants against what he terms "robbery."

Private homes are demanding $3 a day for a room.

Fight experts were more optimistic over Dempsey's chances today as a result of his workout. The champion tore into Harry Greb of Pittsburgh, for three rounds and took on Marty O'Farrell for the same amount. During the entire six rounds he stood on his feet and shadow boxed between rounds.

John Neisen of Kaukauna was a visitor in Appleton Thursday.

BRITAIN HOPES TO WALLOP AMERICANS

(Special to Post-Crescent)
London.—Great Britain expected to rather the laurels she failed to win at Antwerp when the pick of her athletes met about forty American track and field stars at the special Queen's club games today.

Events had been arranged in which the British were strongest, particularly the middle distance runs. The only events scheduled were: Two mile relay, 550 yard relay, four mile relay, two mile team race, 440 yard relay, 120 yard hurdles, broad jump, javelin throw and discus throw.

Among the American entries were Joe Ray, Charles Paddock, Morris Kirksey, J. K. Scholz, Allen Woodring, Sol Butler, A. R. Pope and J. C. Lincoln.

KAUB TO SPEAK FROM SOAPBOX HERE TUESDAY

V. P. Kaub, Oshkosh, former socialist and newspaper man, well known in this city, will deliver an address at the corner of College avenue and Oneida street at eight o'clock Tuesday evening under auspices of the Constitutional Defense league, according to an announcement Saturday morning.

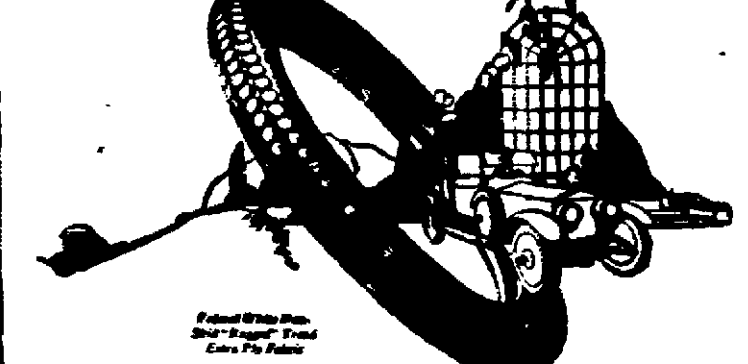

Kaub is an experienced "soap-box" orator. Not many years ago he talked from soapboxes in behalf of the socialists but he experienced a change of heart when America entered the war and found the socialists lining up with Germany. He was then a newspaper publisher but he retired from that work a few years ago and entered the employ of a Milwaukee newspaper as correspondent from the Fox river valley.
